THAT the brick street question is settled, for a time at least, it may be worth while to remark that the Cincinnati Baseball Club has won a game.

Having paid about $12,000,000 for a title, three kids and a few years residence in Paris, the Countess Boni de Castellane will return to New York with a divorce and her sister, Miss HELEN GOULD. Count Boni will probably marry some other fool American woman.

THE accepted bid for building the brick streets looks very favorable, being within the Engineer's estimate and a shade less than the same class of work has been let elsewhere. Now, let the Engineer watch the job closely, while the city officials and the taxpayers watch the whole business.

EVERYTHING comes to those who work hard enough and wait long enough. After a cam: paign of more than thirty years, sometimes waged with considerable vigor, The Ledger Man sees the real beginning of Maysville's rejuvenation—the construction of brick streets. After they are built, the people will wonder how on earth they ever got along without them, and why they spent in thirty years $150,000 for the alternating mud roads and dusty lanes that have cursed the old town-and been cursed in turn.

Senator FORAKER'S vote against the Rate Bill comes as a matter of regret to all Ohio Republicans. It was a duty which the Senator owed to the party to set aside any doubts he may have had as to the constitutionality of the measure and follow his party's policy. Congress is a political body, using the phrase in its highest meaning, not a judicial one. While for Congress to enact legislation which is knowingly unconstitutional would be folly, it is no part of its work to reject a measure in a virgin field because possibly it might be unconstitutional. The po'icy embarked in by the Federal Legislature is new, and its legal phases have yet to be sifted out; indeed, it can be truly said that there is a question of the constitutionality of any measure of this sort. But constitutionality is not a question for Congress to determin . The Constitution reposes the judicial power in another co-ordinate branch of the Government.

The Republican party, through the sentiments of the Executive and its members in both branches of Congress, determined upon the regulation of railway rates as a policy and upon the terms of a measure embodying this policy. It was the duty of every Republican in Congress to set aside any opinion he may have had as to the legal phases of the question and vote for the party measure.

As we understand it, Senator FORAKER has always declared himself in favor of the regulation of railway rates, but has centered his opposition upon his belief as a lawyer that pending measures were unconstitutional. But, as we have said, the Senate Chamber is not a Courtroom in which is decided the constitutionality, or the lack of it, of any legislation. There only the political phasesthat is, the wisdom and the justness of any policy-are passed upon.

Senator FORAKER, in his devotion to the law, has permitted himself to be engineered into a position of apparent antagonism not only to the wishes of the Republicans of the state, but of the Nation. He has failed to remember that he is a Senator and not a Judge. - Cincinnati

All of which is very queer logic, and worthy of a Kentucky legislator who knowingly votes for an unconstitutional redistricting bill for the sole reason that it helps his party.

Senator Foraker may have incurred the displeasure of the "political trimmers" by his vote; but he stands before the country as an honest man, true to his convictions of right, and not as one who would stultify himself to gain the And use Slug Shot to kill the temporary applause of the rabble. If it shall turn out that the Supreme Court declares the Railroad Rate Bill unconstitutional, I'd rather be Senator FORAKER than any of the fellows who voted for it for policy and party sake.

CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well.

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood! How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

A mother should come to her child's aid at this critical time and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities

"Home Coming and Home-Going" was the | Keutucky poet of some celebrity-Mr. W. J. subject of a very able sermon delivered Sunday morning at the First M. E. Church, South, by the Pastor, Rev. Felix K. Struve. Mr. Struve took his text from Psalm 137, and from Hebrews

It is sometimes profitable to touch the pulse of public thought and from the diagnosis project some great spiritual truth.

13:14, and spoke substantially as follows-

The spirit of the "Home-Coming and Home-Going" is in the very air we breathe. The man who first expressed the idea now so largely being proclaimed by the press and people, is deserving of the highest praise. It is not a new thought, as we shall see, but one that always arouses the most intense enthusiasm, and stirs the very depths of the emotions.

The subject announced is neither contradictory or tautological. Home-Coming and Home-Going are kindred thoughts, closely allied but distinct. I might say that two classes are concerned in this movement-those who are going home are rejoicing in the prospect and expectation; and those who are looking for the return of loved ones long since absent.

My first remarks have to do with the present exodus of Kentuckians from all parts of our great country, back to the old "Bluegrass State" the land of corn and wine, also the land of milk and honey. I may not better begin my remarks than by the quotation of some verses recently written by a young Miss of 15,-Frazie Kirk of Sandborn, Ind .-

"I saw in the home paper from Kentucky t'other

That natives of Kentucky from places far away Was comin' home in June sometime to spend a day or two

Among the friends and relatives that they once loved and knew.

so I guess I'll start back homeward toward the scene of better days, here in life's sunshiny springtime the birds sang sweetest lays;

Back to dear old Kentucky, where the happy mockbird trills, For he's glad he's in Kentucky 'mong her sheltering, green-clad hills."

To be proud of one's native state is no sin; how well then may one be proud, if his native state is the land of bluegrass and beauty! As Paul was proud of the fact that he was of the tribe of Benjamin, so is the speaker, as well as many in this audience, proud that old Kentucky was the place of nativity. I, too, am a Kentuckian, and nowhere on thelearth does the sun shine so bright as in myfold Kentucky home.

I cannot resist another quotation from a now. However hard may have been their condition, harder still was that ever-present, longing desire for the sight of their native heath. How the visions of the vine-clad hills came before them; in the midst of duty and drudgery, or engaged in willing worship, the picture was ever before their mental eyes-the picture of their blessed Jerusalem.

The sweet singer of Israel touched the minor keys of the harp as he sang and played the plaintive, sad, sweet words here written. It was a kindred spirit that sang in the heart of John Howard Payne, as he composed the words of that immortal poem-"Home, Sweet Home." How similar that spirit will appear from a quotation of the lines:

sickness" that filled the hearts of God's chosen people who lived so long ago. The story of their servitude is too long to relate here and

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam, Still, be it ever so humble, there's no place like A charm from the skies seems to hallow it there,

Which, go through the world, you'll not meet with elsewhere. Home, home, sweet home!

There's no place like home.

An exile from home, pleasure dazzles in vain; Ah! give me my lowly thatched cottage again. The birds singing sweetly that come to my call, Oh, give me sweet peace of mind, dearer than all 'Home, sweet, sweet home!

however tender and sweet may be the memories we must hasten to the concluding thoughts.

The most impressive of all impressions is the thought of the "Home land beyond the skies." This was in the mind of Abraham when he journeyed, seeking a city whose builder and maker was God! Ours is a transient condition; here we are pilgrims and sojourners; our citizenship is in heaven. The land of promise-the Caanan land-is still the country beyond us.

No matter how the heart thrills at the thought of return to the place of one's nativity; no matter how glad the greetings of many friends; these are transient blessings; these are only fore-shadows of the gladder greetings beyond

A Have you read, recently, that wonderful description of John the Divine of the New Jerusalem-that city to which he looked, and to ble? How much of inspiration there is in that nicture-how much of human longing for home how much of humanity, or divinity, we may not say. But what a sympathetic picture it is!

A city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God! Not the workmanship of men, but the workmanship of God! Not a temporary home of wood or stone, subject to dissolution and destruction, but a home not built with hands, eternal in the heavens.

to our hearts! There is to be no sickness there. nor death, nor sorrow, and God shall wipe away the tears that trickle down our cheeks-and the sweet song-bird of hope shall forever sing in our hearts the songs of rejoicing and eternal springtime! Thank God! for the prospective homegoing to the land beyond the stars!

Pardon me if I do not hasten to the conclusion. There are yet a few words to be said.

Does not that hope make many a task easy, and many a burden light? I must admit that earth has for me no magnetic powers-to see the home-land, to be at home-the very thought overwhelms the soul!

Yesterday morning in making the rounds collecting his Times-Star subscription, it occurred to Mr. Henry Wilson while on Sixth street that he would climb the hill and view the landscape o'er from Reservoir Hill.

He had read of the beautiful sight that presented itself from this point of vantage, and that alone was the only incentive that possessed him to make the tiresome journey.

After reaching the brow of the hill, he sat STEAM AND HOT WATER HEATING down to rest and meanwhile feast his eyes on the enchanting panorama-the glow of the daygod tinging the Eastern hills, the serpentine windings of the placid waters of the Ohio, the lofty hills, trees with verdant foliage, green swards and fallow fields stretched out before Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Mays-ville People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Maysville cures are the proof.

W. H. Paul, carpenter by trade, living at 333 East Third street, Maysville, Ky., says:
"I value Doan's Kidney Pills as highly today as I did when I first used them in 1899. I got a box and used it for a pain in my back and other evidences of a disordered condition of the kidneys which had given me much trouble for two years or more. This remedy acted promptly and I was soon cured. I did not notice any of the difficulties until some four years later, or about a year ago. I again procured Doan's Kidney Pills at J. James Wood & Son's Drugstore and all symptoms of the trouble were quickly and thoroughly removed. Since then I have not noticed any signs of trouble of any kind arising from my back or kidneys. I most cheerfully re-indorse Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are
